

Elsewhere on S&V...

My glamorous life as a broke artist.

Hous Project's the Naked Truth May 13- July 10, 2010.

NY Design week wrap up.

Kenny Kenny and his nocturnal entourage.

By Sallywag • May 13th, 2010 • Category: Visual Arts

Amanda Lepore to the right that corporate culture is subversive, and that's the idea I'm curious in exploring, that everything can be normal and healthy.

From there we all applauded as Sultan the drag queen took to the stage and began singing retro French ballads, the kids preening for another shot of fame and fun and Kenny Kenny in the background aiming his well trained eye and camera at all the pretty things fluttering past.

Proceeds from the exhibit will go to Nepalese orphans courtesy of Ghar Sita Mutu and the exhibit itself can be seen at Collective Gallery.

To see more of Chervine's images go here.

Sultan in the red dress.

Patrick Mcdonald and Scallywag.

Pages: 1 2

Tagged as: Amanda Lepore, Bon Vivant in NY, Ghar Sita Mutu, Kenny Kenny, Kenny Kenny at Collective Gallery, Patrick Mcdonald ShareThis

Email this author | All posts by Scallywag

Leave a Reply